CONSPIRATORS COMMUTED.

Cases of Hammond, Phillips, Farrar and Rhodes Set Aside.

cising Clemency Received with Gratefulness in Many Quarters.

LONDON, April 29.-There was a feeling of relief in official circles to-day when Mr. Josneer, Colonel Francis Rhodes, a brother of the former Premier of Cape Colony, Lionel Phillips, president of the Chamber of Mines, of Johannesburg, and George Farrar, proprietor of Country Life, of Johannesburg, that the Executive Council was in session considering what sentences would be substi-

A dispatch from Pretoria says: "The judge, After remarking that decorum had been maintained during the trial, he said it was his painful duty to pass the sentences required by law. Then, amid profound silence, the judge sentenced, individually and collectively, Phillips, George, Rhodes and Hammond, to death and in the foregoing order. The prisoners were perfectly calm and merely bowed to the judge when their sentences were pronounced. The judge then sentenced the other prisoners to pay fines of $10,000 each. to undergo two years' imprisonment and to three years' banishment, although the latter punishment is made subject to the will of the them all upon the same footing. The judge | the. oners were more guilty of folly than of crime. It was predicted after the death sentences had been passed that it was more than likely that President Kruger would commute them to heavy fines, imprisonment and banishment for a long term of years.

At the Grand Habitation of the Primrose League, which took place at Covent-Garden Opera House this afternoon, the Premier, the Marquis of Salisbury, was the principal speaker. Referring to the commuof the leaders of the Johannesburg reform committee, he said that he thought from the past that the people might believe that President Kruger would not make unworthy use of circumstances which had placed political opponents in his hands. There has been, he added, a great deal of criticism abroad concerning the advance on Dongola. "But," he said, "we are bound to relieve Exypt of the fearful curse of savage invasions and domination on the frontier and by the expedition we are only fulfilling one of the primary and most imperative articles of our trust to that country.'

A message from the Secretary of State for the Colonies, Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, was communicated to President Kruger last evening by Sir J. A. De Wett, the British agent at Preoria. The President was calm, but it was evident to all that he felt the gravity of the situation most acutely. Last ight a rumor obtained circulation that the President was carefully going over the records of the trial and consulting with the legal authorities of Pretoria, with the result that he had decided to commute the Vitation to visit England was assumed in order that there might be no mistake as to the actual attitude of the Transvaal towards Great Britain. The President's concluding remarks, it is pointed out here, distinctly outline the future policy of the Transvaal. He said: "Under existing circumstances, the South African republic will not at present press a reconsideration of the London convention and a substitution for it of a treaty of amity and commerce, but will rest satisfied with pecuniary compensation and with the assurance that no violation of its territory will be repeated."

Later in the day the report that President vitation to visit England was assumed in Later in the day the report that President Kruger bad commuted the death sentences was confirmed and this caused still further rejoicing in many quarters. The step, it is added, will have a decidedly beneficial effect on the relations between the British and the Boers, even though it was anticipated and to a great extent discounted. But the strain will be resumed when the question of Great Britain paying an indemnity to the Transvaal comes up. It is intimated here, however, that the Britsh government will endeavor to shift the whole responsibility in the matter on the shoulders of the British Chartered South African Company and that seems to be the only way out of the diffi-culty, although it is difficult to see how Great Britain can furnish the Transvaal with an assurance that no violation of its territory will be repeated unless the alleged grievances of the Uitlanders are redressed. The Diggers News, of Johannesburg, says that Barney Barnato feels very bitter against the Transvaal authorities on account of the treatment received by the reform prisoners and the sentences imposed upon them. The broken window opened into a shed on the alley running north. Breen stood at the corner of the building for some minutes trying to signal people passing on Illinois street. He ran half way down the alley before anyone came to his aid, and it is possible that the man escaped while the vindow was unguarded, but it is more likely that he had been warned of Breen's approach by a confederate. At any rate, he could not be found when Breen and the police went through the building searching for him.
